My name is Giulia Sardi, I come from Italy and I am 22 years old.

I started playing as a child and, with growing passion, I attended violin studies at the Conservatory of my town, Alessandria, getting my Diploma in 2013 with 10/10 and laude! At the same time I attended an apprenticeship on teaching children, and I worked as substitute teacher for some months in a.y. 2013/14. Since September 2014 I live in Maastricht, where I am now finishing my Bachelor degree course at Conservatorium.

Violin taught me the beauty of expressing feelings through the art of sounds, and the emotion of playing together with other musicians: for this reason, I choose to work in symphonic orchestras, in Italy and Netherlands, I had a duo with piano, a quartet and I joined many chamber music ensembles...and not only in classical field! I regularly play Baroque music, I participated in a CD recording for the Italian pop group "Vianella" and worked in a soundtrack-production orchestra.

Why I like working with children?

When I started playing violin I was 7 years old: at that time, the fact of playing an instrument was for me such a magical skill and I soon grew fond with it. Thanks to the inspiration my teachers always gave me, I gradually consecrated myself to violin until it became basic part of my life.

That's why I like working with children: first of all they can approach music in a ludic way and easier enjoying this difficult art, but most of all, I hope to pass them the same passion that I had at their age.

I also support teaching music in English: mixing violin lessons with English practice may be a funny way for children to achieve new language skills, also useful in everyday life.

Facts about me

Together with classical music, I have many interests that range from pop and rock music to jazz and disco. At the ages of the high school I also used to play in a rock-band!

I also like very much traveling, reading, writing, exploring and getting close to everything is "art". Last but not least, I love cooking: especially tasty Italian dishes!
